The Story: Any story that starts with, "I was looking for a great producer of Sciascinoso", has to end well, right? In this case it does. Alexia Perlingieri is the 3rd generation of her family to farm in Solopaca, a beautiful, but brutal and dry part of Benevento. Alexia has taken over the work that her mother took over from her grandfather and is now farming two parcels, totaling 13ha, organically. Alexia was an investment banker in Milan before she returned to winemaking. Her mother's last vintage was in 1987 so she had to start from scratch with new land, re-plant, build a modern cellar, and find an oenologist who shared her same view of wine. Alexia is regarded as one of the bright, young stars of Campania, which is easy to understand when you meet her and taste her wines.

Vineyard: In the town of Solopaca, from vineyard-site Sheet 8, parcel 74, 75, and 171. The vineyard is 100 masl with an east/west exposure. Bunches are green harvested in July, grapes are then handpicked and hand sorted around mid-September, which is 10 days earlier than they normally do for Aglianico for freshness, acidity, and lower alcohol.

Vinification: Grapes were soft pressed and macerated for a short period of time, clarified and fermented in tank under temperature control using selected yeast.

Ageing: Aged in stainless steel for 8 months including 3 months of batonnage. Bottled wine is stored for at least 3 months in cellar prior to release.

Everything else you want to know about this wine: Alexia describes this wine as "a typical "rosé from the South" for its structure and soul". The wine offers a wide range of pairings with fried foods, shellfish, and white meat. The 2018 vintage was a difficult year starting in the winter with rain, snow, and cold temperatures. Spring was exceptionally rainy and on May 3 there was a hailstorm which left the land 50cm deep of ice in only 20 minutes knocking out already formed bunches of grapes which affected 2018 and the following pruning year.
