

Togni Rebaioli | “Martì Cuntrare”

Lombardia | V.S.Q. Rosato

The Story: Enrico Togni is the last grower of a native Italian grape known as Erbanno. He farms a small piece of land in Val Camonica way up in the hills of Lombardia. Enrico farms organically and biodynamically. He raises sheep and moves the sheep around his 3ha farm in an old 4x4 Fiat Panda. There is so much to love about Enrico, his family, and their wines. We fell in love with his wines starting with his Rosato, made from 100% Erbanno. Production is tiny and we will continue to get very small amounts of his wines. The vineyard was originally owned by Enrico's grandfather who planted the first grapes in 1960. Enrico left law school to save the family farm and the Erbanno grape from going out of production.

Vineyard: The vineyard is located in Val Camonica which is the longest valley in Lombardia as well as the longest valley in the Italian Alps. The vineyard's altitude is 250 meters to 400 meters above sea level. There are steep slopes all around and one particular mountain that is 1,703 meters above sea level.

Vinification: The wine is fermented with native yeasts and without skin maceration. No sulfites were added. Metodo Classico.

Ageing: Aged in oaks barrels and in concrete tanks.

Everything else you want to know about this wine: "Martì Cuntare" is a typical local expression, meaning "a child who does the opposite of everything." Enrico uses the same grapes to make a still Erbanno and this is the opposite of a still wine.

Varietal: 100% Erbanno

Region: Lombardia

Winemaker: Enrico Togni

Vines: Up to 60 years old

Farming: Organic

Soil: Sandy and Limestone
